

The Story of Purple Girl

by Leandra R. Tolbin

Sarah Williams was obsessed with superheroes. Her favorite comics were about Rainbow Girl and The Color Squad.

One day when she was upset, she went to her favorite hiding place in the woods, but got lost!

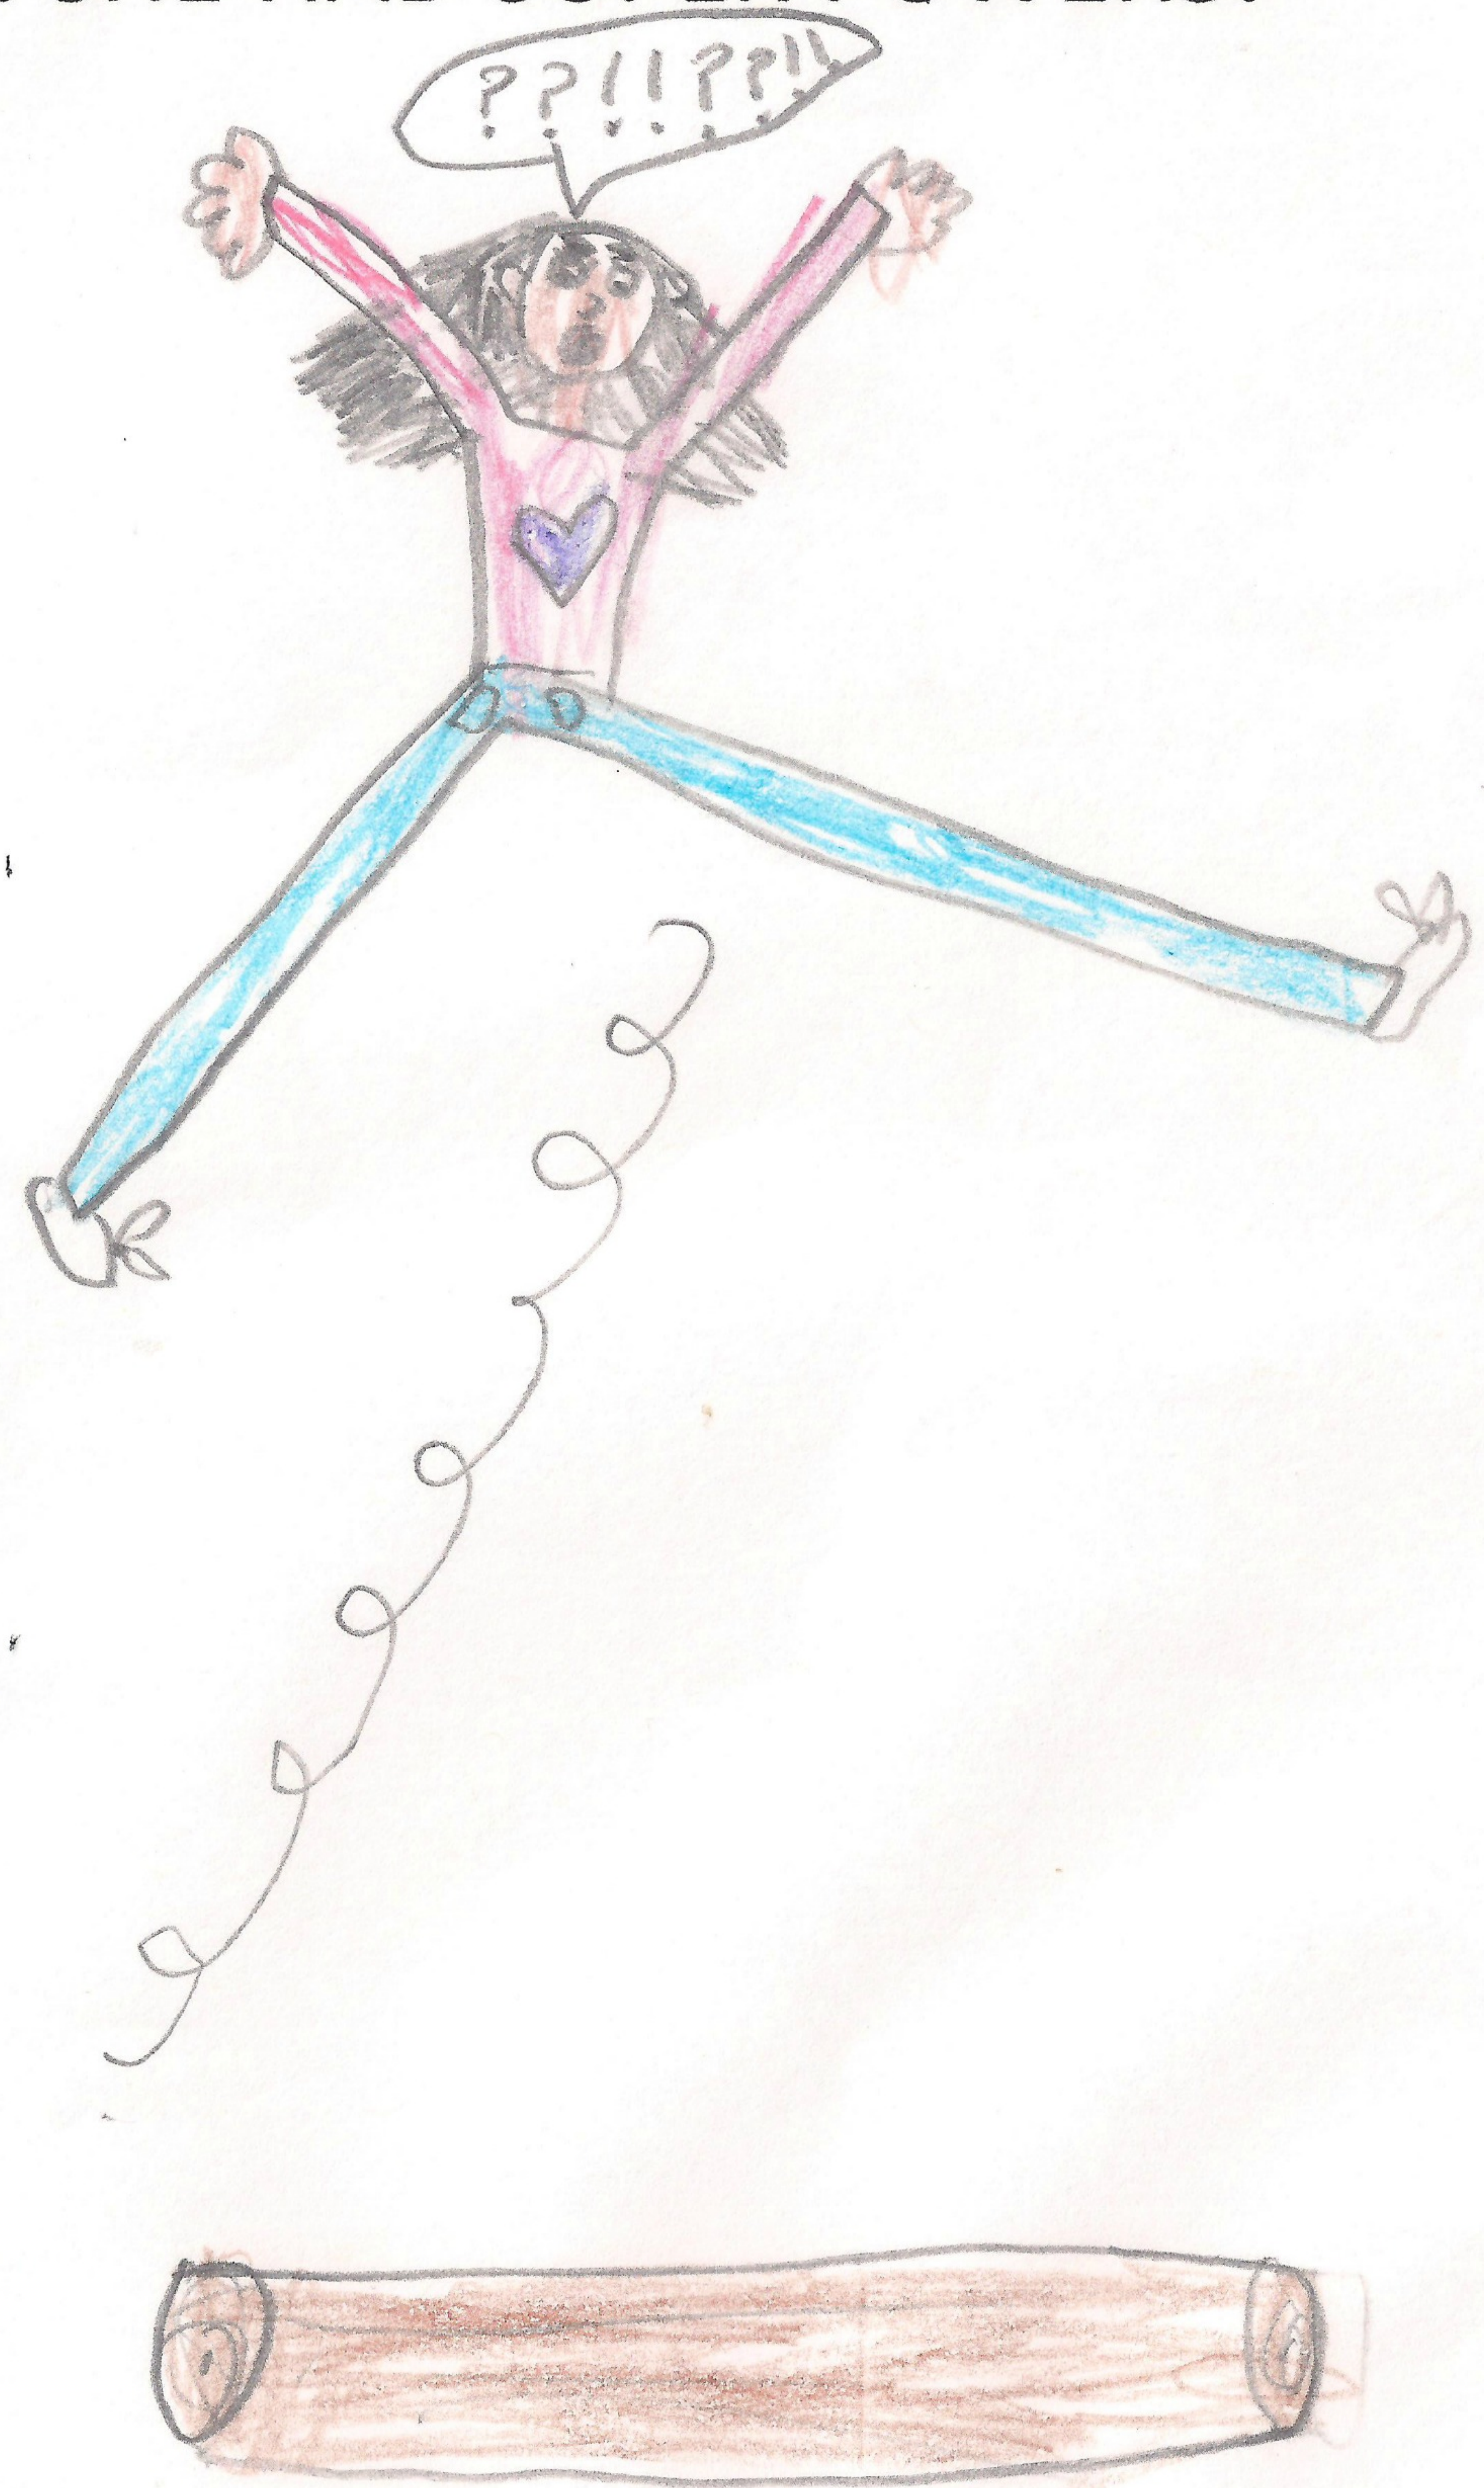

She was about to cry, but then something caught her eye. It was an asteroid! It was so beautiful that Sarah just had to touch it.

When she did, she felt a zap inside her. Colors swirled around her and then blended into one color: purple.

Startled, she started to run home and realized she was super fast! She jumped over a log and started to fly! SHE HAD SUPER POWERS!

She arrived home just in time to see a stranger kidnapping her parents! Sarah said, "Boy, I wish The Color Squad was real so they could help!"

MEANWHILE:

“What?! ATTENTION COLOR SQUAD! It’s the new member we’ve been waiting for, and she’s in trouble!”

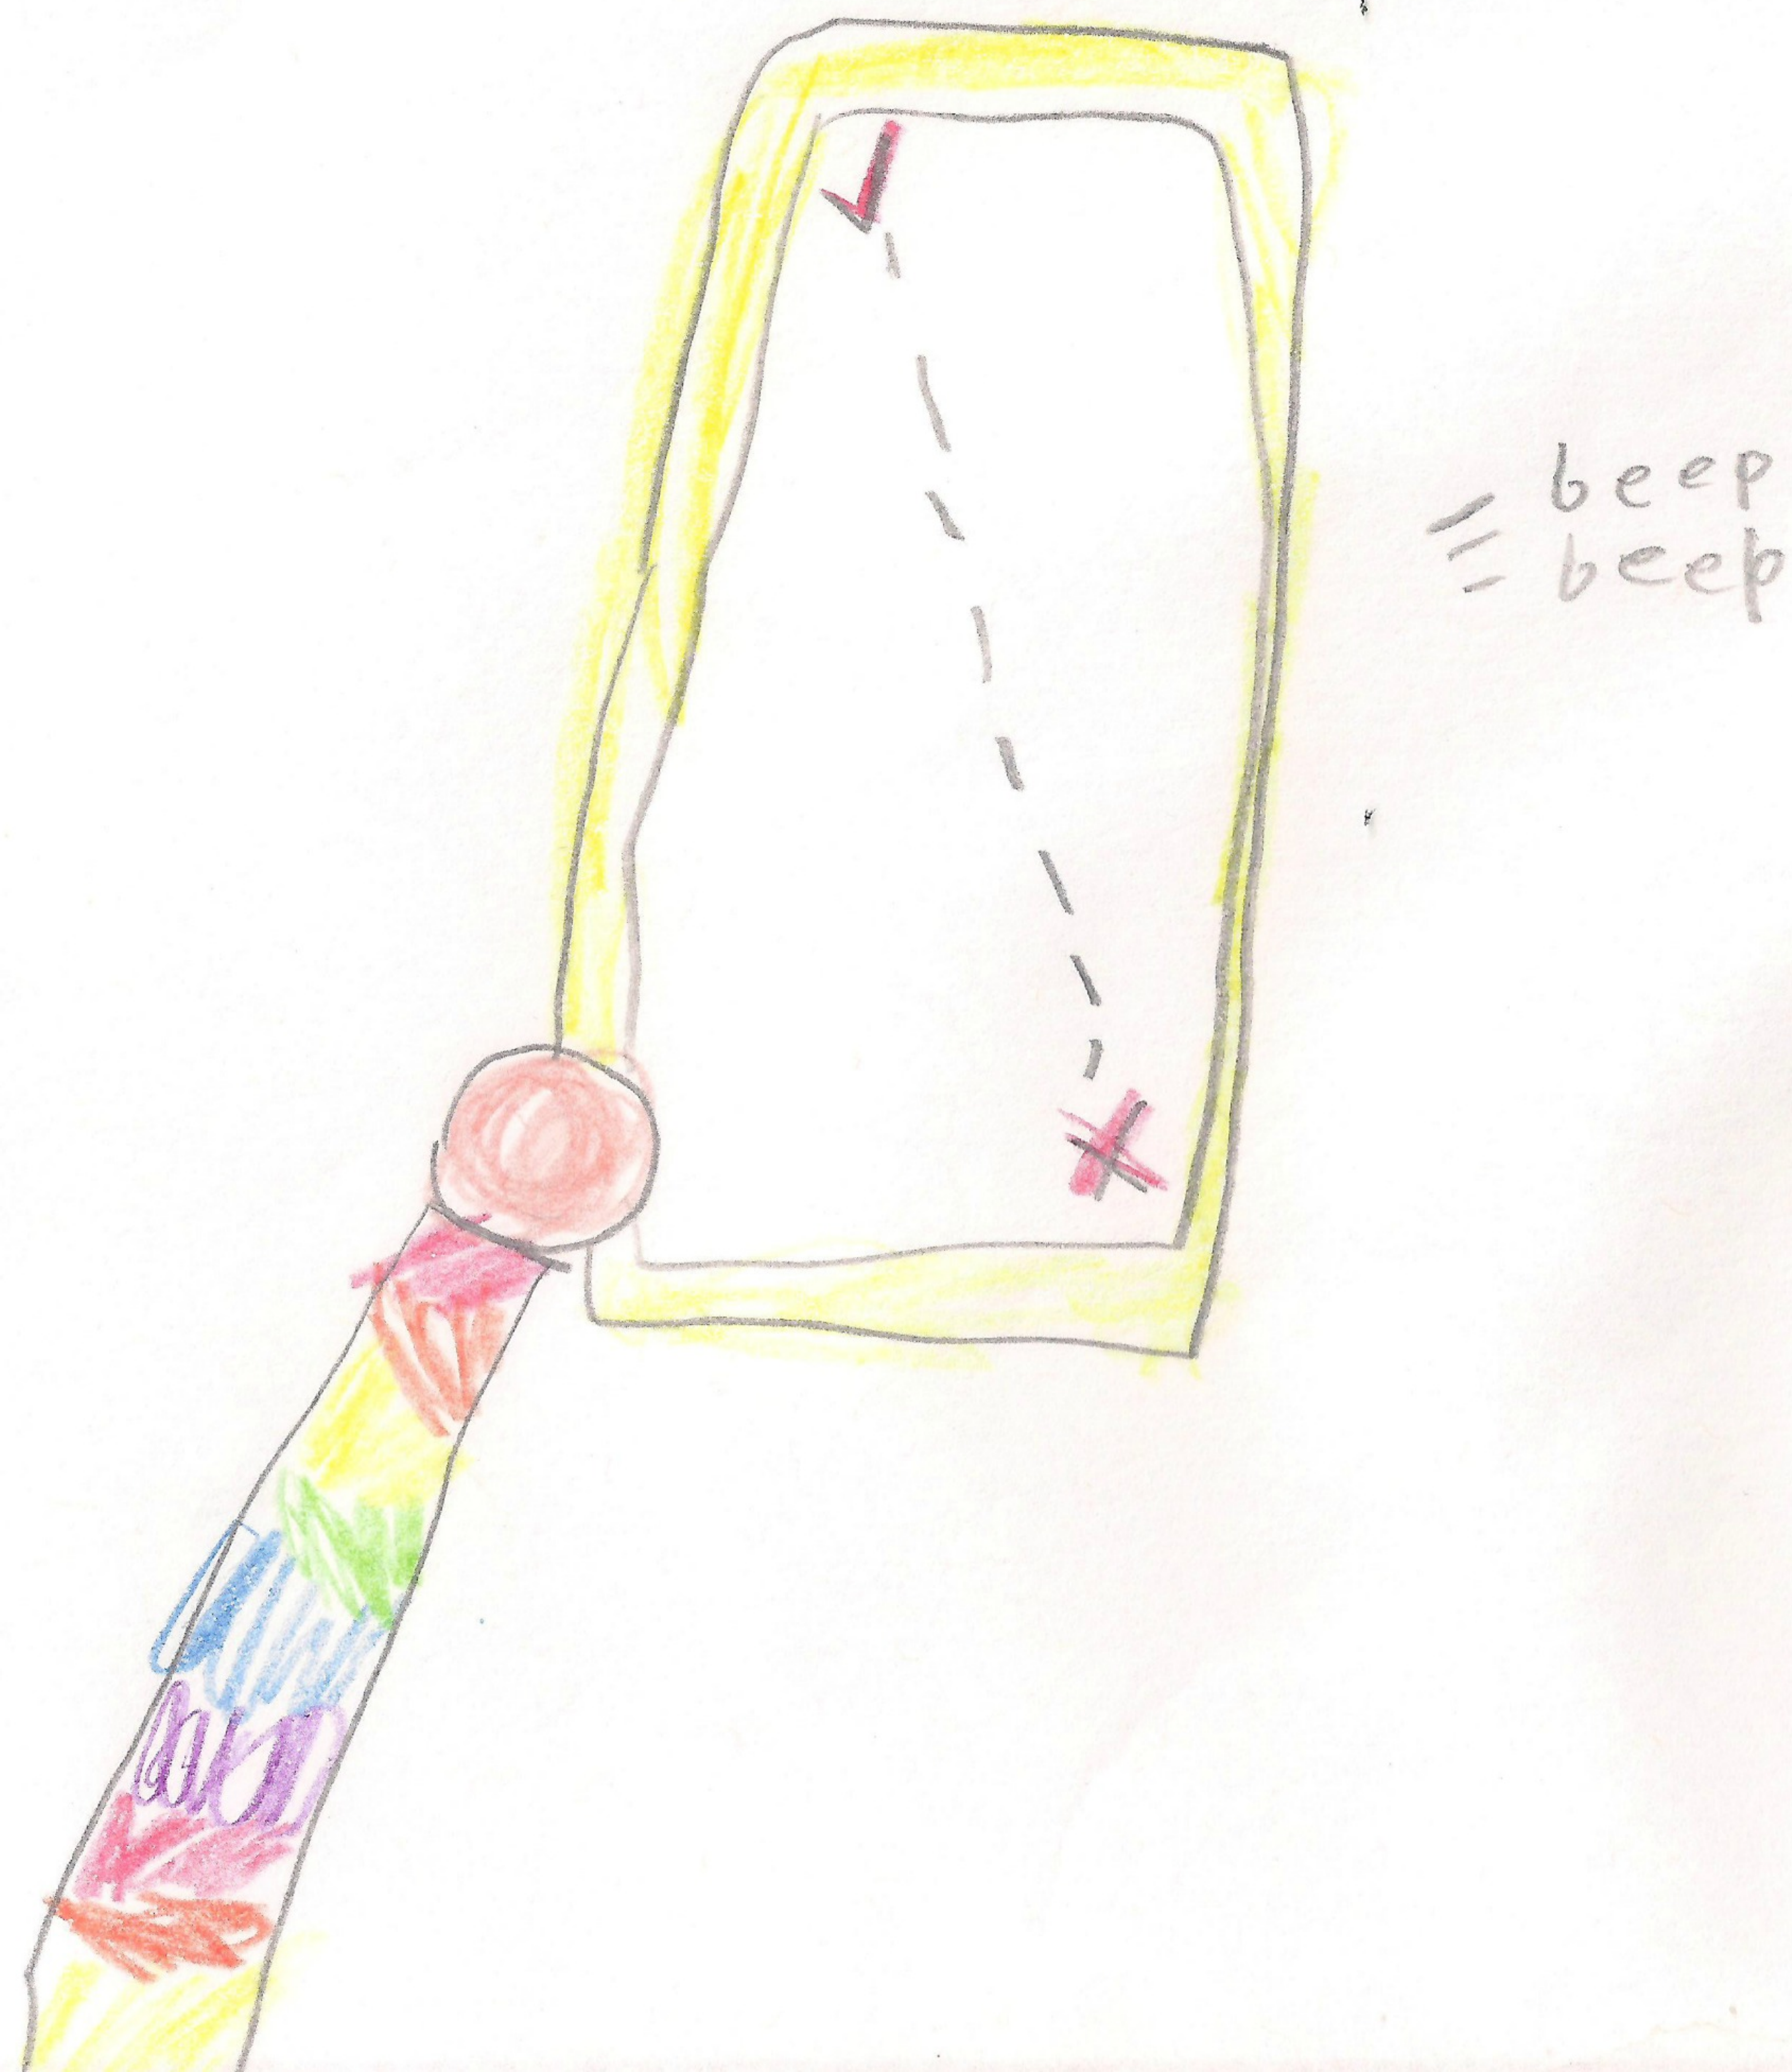

At the speed of light, The Color Squad showed up in front of Sarah.

Rainbow Girl said, "We're here to help you rescue your parents."

Sarah was both flabbergasted and relieved to see her favorite heroes in person.

Rainbow Girl located Sarah's parents with a tracking device.

The team rushed into the Stranger's hideout where they zapped him with their colored balls of light, freezing him long enough to rescue Sarah's parents and send them safely home.

Sarah's parents were so shocked, and there were so many superheroes, that they didn't even notice Sarah.

Next, Rainbow Girl took Sarah to Color Squad Headquarters where she was presented a costume and became an official member of The Color Squad.

And that is how Purple Girl got to be a superhero and a member of The Color Squad.
