STORY

A little girl named Jessie lost her first tooth. When her dad put her to bed, he accidentally leaves his cup of ice tea in Jessie's room.

That night the real tooth fairy has a toothache. She has a substitute tooth fairy fill in for her. The substitute accidentally knocks some of her fairy dust in her Dad's cup while Jessie was sleeping.

The next morning Jessie wakes up. She finds gold Coins. Her dad comes in to see if the tooth fairy came.

He picks up his cup and takes a drink. OH NO, then FLOP! He falls over sound asleep.

Jessie looks in her Dad's cup and sees sparkles. She thinks really hard, then, light bulb! She begins looking in one of her tooth fairy books.

She figures out that it was the tooth fairy's dust that made her Dad fall asleep. Only kids who believe in the tooth fairy can see the dust, that's why her Dad never saw it before he took a drink that morning. Jessie was certainly one of those kids who believed in the tooth fairy, she had over 50 books about her!

Around the 44th book Jessie figured out the cure. The cure to wake up her sleeping Dad was to get a pig to kiss him. Well, lucky for Jessie, they lived on a farm!

Jessie ran down to the pigpen and grabbed one. The pig kissed her Dad. Jessie tells her Dad everything that happened.

After that Jessie and her Dad were always seen with lids on their cups. They figured they had better not take any chances with sleeping fairy dust fluttering around.

I will tell you this again and again but tell your Dad to always put a lid on his cup. If you sleep with a drink by your bed, make sure you do too.
